

SUFFRAGETTES ARE SET BACK BY THE HISSING OF MR. TAFT.

Generally Agreed That Last Night's Incident Has Hurt
the Cause in This Country.

WOMEN RAP THE PRESIDENT

They Say He Talked Purely as a Politician and Political Parties Are Afraid of the Suffrage Movement—Demonstration Started Down Front

WASHINGTON, April 15.—It is generally agreed that the hissing of President Taft at the session of the Women's Suffrage Convention last night will prove the hardest blow the cause has suffered in America. Suffrage leaders are attempting to minimize the incident and contend that it was the outsiders who hissed. They say the hissing was confined to one part of the hall.

The demonstration did not start in the back of the hall but got under way in the midst of a delegation of Sufi flagellants. It was a spontaneous outburst on the part of the delegates against President Taft's statement to the spectators say.

"I did not expect to hear a cultivated gentleman say what President Taft said about Hottentots," said Mrs. Shaw when asked regarding last night's hissing. "He spoke purely as a politician and political parties are afraid of us. They know they could not control the average woman's vote. If they could use us we could vote at the next election."

It is true some younger members who lost patience after the President's Hottentot remarks and followed by a reference of the victors element controlling the votes may have joined in the demonstration. They are young and do not know that it doesn't make any difference what the President says.

COUNCIL MAKES 1-4 MILL INCREASE.

At the report of Councilman Koon at the property owners along Mountain they will be directed to stop building up that thoroughfare owing to a dispute over the grade. Louis Saporsky was given permission to put in a telephone line at his shop in Grapevines. On complaint of T. L. Durst the Chief of Police will be directed to refuse parties from drinking refuse on West Parkway avenue. Efforts were made to blame Health Officer Allen for not having the trouble removed but Councilman Thompson declared it was more a matter for Council than the Board of Health.

A case of John Dwyer's pay was set at eight dollars, West Side. And on the table Mr. Dwyer in his case at present. He claims that he is not for putting this side of the case because the West Penn of all companies refuse to replace him.

S. P. May reported that the street laborers are up against the high cost of living and want a raise. They get $1.50 a day and ask $1.75. This was one argument which resulted in the matter being referred to the Street Committee.

The Street Committee was directed to proceed with raising the curb at the corner.

The Police Committee was called when it was getting late and kindly excused. Nothing doing. The Light Committee acted on the Franklin Avenue matter and presented petitions from the residents at the corner of West Park and Orchard alley and on the days and Meadow lane, also a petition for a bath in Snyder town. These were placed on file.

There was nothing on water and sewer. It is only reported that the sewer work has been returned and the complaint is now off.

The sewer Committee recommended the laying of a sewer in Hill street and Brown way and was directed to do so.

The Rare Style and Fit of Adler-Rochester Clothes

Every man who cares about clothes should see our stock of the famous Adler-Rochester clothes. No finer tailoring is done in America—not by the most expensive custom tailors.

The Adler-Rochester plant is the most perfect tailoring institution in all the land.

Its wonders are countless. Concrete, glass and steel form its construction. 1011 windows give a constant flood of sunshine and fresh air.

Library, Reading Room, Smoking Room and Dining Rooms, provide home comfort and real happiness to Adler-Rochester employees.

And these ideal conditions are reflected in every line, in every inner detail of Adler-Rochester clothes.

The Adler-Rochester fit is an art—developed in the study of every type of man since 1869.

And the prices are especially interesting for clothes so clearly superior. At $18.00 and upwards, Adler-Rochester clothes are the best values the world has ever known.

And these prices are only possible because the makers confine their profit to 6 per cent.

This is the First Suit Sale We've Held this Season and It's to Be the Greatest We've Ever Held.

We've Just Unpacked the Suits Involved and They'll Be On Sale Friday and Saturday.

The manufacturer from whom we secured them had reached the end of his season, he was anxious to get them out of the way and begin work on his fall line. What he got for them wasn't nearly as important to him as how quick he could dispose of them. So he named us a price that was considerably lower than we had expected to pay; we jumped at the chance because we knew you'd appreciate such a sale as we're now announcing.

Every suit is one of this season's most stylish models, we bought lots of them from him and sold them in regular stock at prices that are far higher than we're quoting now. The women who bought them were exceedingly well pleased, they knew that even at their full regular prices these suits were well worth buying.

This Being the Case, the Importance of this Sale Can't Possibly Be Exaggerated.

For it offers the very flower of the season's styles, the season's most favored materials and the season's correct colors at a price that in some instances represents but half of the value of the suits. Those of you who haven't as yet bought your spring suits can count yourselves lucky indeed, those of you who have could well afford to buy another.

Colonel Brands As Joke Story Printed in Paris That He Has Consented to Be Candidate for President in 1912—Says He Wants to Hear All Sides and Will Speak Regardless of Parties.

U. S. A. Press Telegram
WASH., April 15.—Through the error of a member of the reception committee there was no hotel reservation made for Colonel Rostovtchikoff here. The Colonel had a triumphant ride from the staff in the hotel but found no room awaiting him. The manager of the hotel was in a small room and later provided the luxury of a private room.

United States Ambassador Keren said he thought Baron Hengemuehlen, former Austrian Ambassador to Washington, had made the arrangement. Baron Hengemuehlen thought it Keren's job.

on his arrival there. He spent two hours with the staff, and then visited Count Von Aernthal, the Minister of Foreign Affairs. Baroness Von Hengemuehler, an intimate friend of the Roosevelts, in Washington, United States Ambassador Henry White and Lieutenant Von Hahnke, the African hunter, were the Colonel's guests at lunch. The party spent an hour at the Emperor Franz Josef palace. They placed wreaths on the tombs of the Empress Elizabeth and Crown Prince Rudolph at the Capuchin Church. They also saw the jumping horses exhibition at the riding school and inspected the crack Russian regiments. In the evening the Colonel received a visit from the Emperor and attended a dinner given by Minister Von Aernthal.

BUSY DAYS

These are busy days for the engineering department of the West Penn. Highway.

There are busy days for the engineering department of the West Penn. Highway. The work of straightening out the bridge in the line is progressing rapidly. Work Contractor Bernard O'Connor is doing good work at Youngstown and John Duncan is getting the finishing touches on the cut of town. Things are humming.

This morning the tollbox brackets on the new bridge were removed by a new design. Chief Engineer Fritsch designed the new brackets, which were made at the University shops. They are far superior to the old pipe brackets and the tollbox brackets on the old bridge will last as long as the tollbox does.

Although the bridge across the Conowingon river is a county structure, the West Penn. took the influence and expense of the toll brackets to get it charge to the county.

THE INCREASE OF THE LIBRARY TAX.

The action of the Town Council last evening in increasing the tax levy for library purposes from one-half to three-fourths of a mill was a just recognition of the merit as well as the needs of the library, and it is gratifying to note that the recognition was general.

While the report of the Finance Committee was not acted upon at the recent meeting of the committee, its members and the members of the Council generally, were impressed by the public and private protests which have been made to them and the representatives of the Councilmen who have been serving as Library Trustees.

The need of the library is pressing. The appropriations in past years have been insufficient for the payment of salaries and expenses, and the purchase of sufficient new books to keep the library up to date and the provision of materials for standard books which have been actually worn out with usage. As a result the library has been going backward instead of forward, and it had become a serious question when the trustees whether they would not eventually be confronted with the unpleasant necessity of closing its doors.

The action of the Town Council last night in increasing the tax levy for the library is a great educational institution. If the Town Council will emulate the example of the Town Council, and we have no reason to doubt that the liberality of one body will be less than that of the other, the library will be able to materially increase its efficiency.

Building from the recent expressions of Andrew Carnegie it is probable that he will eventually make some provision for the maintenance of the library, founded by him, and this will likely take the form of appropriating an amount equal to that which the towns and cities are willing to give. If this form, the present tax levy shall seem to be burdensome to any of the citizens of Connelville they may console themselves with the thought that it is not likely to last very long.

It will also be well to bear in mind the fact that the towns which indicate an earnest desire to support their libraries to the best of their ability will be the first to receive this founder's aid.

The Greenburg hospital authorities will go fishing for sponges.

The fractions horse is as dangerous as the devilish devil.

THE NECESSITY OF A NEW BOND ISSUE.

The announcement of the Finance Committee of the Town Council through its Chairman that it will be necessary, in order to provide the pending improvements incident to our town extension and to refund our floating certificates of indebtedness bearing a 6 percent interest, to ask the people for authority to emit a bond issue, is not surprising.

The fact has been fairly well understood by the public and there is no doubt but that the concept of the people at the polls will be freely given. The bond issue is necessary to the economical administration of affairs and to the redemption of pledges and representations made when consolidation was effected. Connelville promptly acted at that time to give the new territory taken in as far and as fast as possible all the advantages enjoyed by the old town. The promise must be kept.

It is a matter of plain business to refund the outstanding certificates of indebtedness. Connelville can sell at par for 100 percent bond, and can possibly float a 1 percent bond. The value of interest is a material item.

The extent and character of the bond issue on the proposition therefore, will depend wholly on the amount of the town's assets and valuation as reflected by the County Commissioners, and this information is not yet at hand. It is a matter with interest, but the necessity of the bond proposition can be thoughtfully considered and not discredited.

RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF BOROUGH TREASURERS.

The report of the Borough Treasurer that the Town Council designate the banks in which he shall deposit the borough funds was very properly declined.

In view of the fact that the Borough Treasurer is directly and personally responsible for the safekeeping of the borough funds in his hands, it is a reasonable logic that when this right is taken away from him and assumed by the Town Council the latter body assumes the responsibility for the safekeeping of the money and releases the Treasurer of it. This question has been discussed and settled by former Town Councils. It was may be possible to borrow a legal opinion from some of the Connelville residents.

It would have been well, judging from the developments, had the Council been similarly advised when the Borough Treasurer was elected. It was the duty of the Council, as assumed by the Borough Treasurer, to do so.

It is a matter of plain business to refund the outstanding certificates of indebtedness. Connelville can sell at par for 100 percent bond, and can possibly float a 1 percent bond. The value of interest is a material item.

There is but one just and proper plan by which the Town Council can designate a borough treasurer, and that is by making that bank the Borough Treasurer with all the responsibilities of the office.

ACTIVE COAL DEALS
AND ACTIVE IMAGINATIONS.

The Uniontown Herald tells us that coal deals are active in Greene county and prints a number of deeds recorded at Waynesburg as an evidence of the fact, concluding with this paragraph:

April 4, 1910.—James H. Perchitt, et al., to J. V. Thompson, the three-fourths interest in the coal underlying ten tracts of land located in Center and Morris townships, containing 1,019.048 acres, consideration, $25,000.00.

Three-fourths of a million and a half acres bought for over fifty-three million dollars would indicate some activity in Greene county coal lands. In fact, we should say entirely too much activity, in view of the fact that Greene county's total area aggregated just 300,000 acres. This would indicate that the Greene county coal field has had not only been bought up but that the coal deal took in the Panhandle and butted into Ohio. Coal deals are active in Greene county, but not as active as the imaginations of some editors.

The coal and coke news of the Uniontown papers is often stupendously interesting, but just as often grossly wrong. People who are interested in this line of news and want the facts, gathered with care and written with understanding, look for them in The Courier.

54-40 OR FIGHT BY EMERSON HOUGH AUTHOR OF THE MISSISSIPPI SUDDE ILLUSTRATIONS BY MAGNUS G. KETNER COPYRIGHT 1909 BY CORNELL-PENNELL CO.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The story is told by Nicholas Trist. His chief antagonist, John Calhoun, offered the portfolio of secretary of state to Tyler cabinet. In fact, he was a friend of Dr. Ward, that his time is short. Calhoun declares that he is not ready to die, and if he becomes Tyler's secretary, it means that Texas and Oregon must be added to the map of the United States. His place is to lead the nation of England with regard to Mexico, through the hands of his secret spy and reputed mistress of the English ambassador, Dr. Pakenham.

CHAPTER II—Nicholas is directed to bring the baggage to Calhoun's apartments at midnight.

CHAPTER III—The grand cause Nicholas to miss a meeting with his sweetheart, Elizabeth Churchill.

CHAPTER IV—While searching for the baggage, Nicholas catches up and Nicholas is benighted to enter. He finds himself with the baggage, who says he is being pursued and begs his assistance.

CHAPTER V—Arrived at the baggage's apartments, after sliding the door, Nicholas notices that she has just a single hair. He is invited into the house and delivers Calhoun's message.

CHAPTER VI—The baggage's idea to show the room to Nicholas. She tells him that she will tell Calhoun everything. He gives her an Indian trinket he intended for her.

CHAPTER VII.

Regarding Elizabeth.

Without warning the new secretary of state would be despoiled of war and the middle would be devoid of pleasure—Trist.

In some forgotten corner of this country, as I do not doubt, yowled with age, stained and undistinguishable, lost among uncounted-for relics of another day, there may be records of that interview between two strange personalities, John Calhoun and Nicholas von Ritz, in the arrangement of which I played the part above described. I was not at that time privileged to have much more than a guess at the nature of the interview. Indeed, other things now occupied my mind. I was very much in love with Elizabeth Churchill.

Of these matters I need to make no mention. My father's plantation was one of the old ones in Maryland. That of the Churchills lay across a low range of mountains and in another county from us, but our families had long been friends. I and Elizabeth Churchill from the time was a tall, slim girl, been companion ever to her father, old Daniel Churchill, for her mother she had lost when she was still young. The Churchills maintained a city establishment in the environs of Washington, D. C., although that was not much removed from their plantation in the old state of Maryland. Elizabeth, this Washington state was called, and it was well known there, with its straight road approaching and its great trees and its wide-doored halls, where by the road itself seemed to run straight through the house and appear beyond and its tall white pillars and hospitable galleries, now in the spring time enclosed in green. I need not state that now, having finished the business of the day, or rather of the night, Elizabeth, home of Elizabeth was my immediate Mecca.

I had clad myself as well as I could in the fashion of my time, and I looked in the mirror, that I made none such but figure of a man. I was tall enough, and straight, thin with long limbs, stout or in the saddle bronzed to a good color, and if health did not show on my face, at least I felt it myself in the lightness of my step, in the contentedness of my heart with all of life, in my general assurance that all in the world meant well toward me, and that everything in the world would do well by me.

As to Elizabeth Churchill, it might have been in line with a Marylander, but she was generally known as Betty, but Betty she never was called.

"Is That My Only Reward?" She Asked.

Although that dominion was applied to her as a punishment, twice as large as she after whom she had been named. Betty implies a punishment. Elizabeth was lean and straight, Betty runs for a strong mouth and a short nose. Elizabeth was red and rosy, but firm and wide enough for strength and charity as well. Betty's round eyes with brown arches above them as though in query and anxiety, the eyes of Elizabeth were dark, her brows long and straight, and delicately drawn. A Betty might even have lost hair; Elizabeth's was brown in most lights, and so liquid smooth that almost I was disposed to call it dense rather than thick. Betty would seem to indicate a nature impulsive, gay, and free from care; on the other hand, it was to be said of Elizabeth that she was logical beyond her kind—a trait which she got from her mother, a daughter of old Judge Henry Gooch of our superior court. Yet, disposed as she always was to be logical in her conclusions, the great characteristic of Elizabeth was acuteness, consideration and charity.

With all this, there appeared sometimes at the surface of Elizabeth's nature that fire and lightness and impulsiveness which she got from her father, Mr. Daniel Churchill. Whether she was wholly reserved and reasonable, or wholly warm and impulsive, I long as I had known and loved her, never was quite sure. Something held me away, something called me forward; so that I was always baffled, and yet always eager, God wot I suppose this is the way of women. At times I have been impatient with it, knowing my own mind well enough.

At least now, in my tight-strapped trousers and my long blue coat and my deep embroidered waistcoat and my high boots, my shining boots and my high boots, I made my way on my well-groomed horse up to the gates of old Kinsbury, and as I rode I pondered and I dreamed.

But Miss Elizabeth was not home. It seemed. Her father, Mr. Daniel Churchill, rather portly, and now just a trifle red of face, met me instead. It was not an encounter for which I devoutly wished, but one which I knew it was the right of both of us to expect ere long. Seeing the occasion propitious I plunked at once in medias res. Part of the time explanatory again, apologetic, and yet again, I trust, unresponsive, although always blinding and red and awkward, I told the father of my intended, of my own wishes, my prospects and my plans.

He listened to me gravely and, it seemed to me, with none of that enthusiasm which I would have welcomed. As to my family, he knew enough. As to my prospects, he questioned me. My record was not unfamiliar to him. So, gaining confidence at last under the influence of what I knew were worthy motives, and which certainly were irresistible of the moment, so far as I was concerned, I asked him if we might not make an end of this, and, taking leave of him, I went, with Elizabeth, to take place at a very distant date.

"Why as to that of course I do not know what my girl will say," was on Mr. Daniel Churchill, pursuing up his way.

"Oh of course," I answered, "Miss Elizabeth said I—"

"The skunkiest!" he exclaimed, "I thought she told me everything."

"I think Miss Elizabeth tells me quite everything," I ventured. "I confess she has kept me almost as much in the dark as yourself, sir. But I only wanted to ask if, after I have seen her today, and if I should gain her consent to an early day, you would not waive any objections on your own part and allow the matter to go forward as soon as possible."

In answer to this he arose from his chair and stood looking out of the window, his back turned to me. I could not call his reception of my suggestion enthusiastic; but at last he turned.

"I presume that our two families might send you some people a sack of meal or a side of bacon now and then, as far as that is concerned," he said.

"I could not call this speech joyous. There are said to be risks in any union, sir," I ventured to say. "If all I do not follow you in contemplating any risk whatever, if either you or your daughter doubts my loyalty or affection, then I should say certainly it were wise to end all this, but—" and I fancied I straightened perceptibly. "I think that might perhaps be left to Miss Elizabeth herself."

After all, Mr. Dan Churchill was obliged to yield, as fathers have been obliged from the beginning of the world. At last he told me I might take my fate in my own hands and go my way.

"True, the instinct of lovers to bring them together," I was quite confident that at that hour I should find Elizabeth and her aunt in the big east room at the president's reception, the former looking on with her uncompromising eyes at the little payment which on reception days regularly went for ward there.

My conclusion was correct. I found a box to hold my horse in front of Gutter's cafe. Then I hastened off across the intervening blocks and through the grounds of the White House, in which, presently, having edged through the throng in the anti-chambers, I found myself in that limbo procession of individuals who passed by in order each to receive the limbo handshakes, the mechanical bow and the perfunctory smile of President Tyler, rather a tall slender figure, a man and of very decent presence, although his thin shankers crooked and his cold blue eyes were little quality of magnetism in his personality.

It was not new to me, of course, this payment although it never lacked of interest. There were in the throng representatives of all America as it was then, a strange, crude blending of refinement and vulgarity, of ease and poverty, of luxury and thrift.

A certain air of gloom at this time hung over official Washington, for the minds of all were still oppressed by the memory of that fatal accident—the explosion of the great cannon "Peace-maker" on board the war vessel "Pittsburgh" which had killed Mr. Upshur, our secretary of state, with others, and had, at one blow, come so near to depriving this government of its head and his official family; the number of prominent lives thus ended or endangered being appalling to contemplate. It was this accident which had called Mr. Calhoun forward at a national juncture of the most extreme delicacy and the utmost importance. In spite of the general mourning, however, the informal receptions at the White House were not wholly discontinued, and the administration, unscathed as it was, and flattered by the greatest of diplomatic problems, made such show of dignity and even cheerfulness as it might.

I considered it my duty to pass in the long procession and to shake the hand of Mr. Tyler. That done, I looked about the great room, carefully scanning the different little groups which were accustomed to form after the ceremonial part of the visit was over. I saw many whom I knew. I forgot them; for in a far corner, where a flood of light came through the trailing vines that shielded the outer window, my anxious eyes discovered the object of my quest—Elizabeth.

"The Traveling Salesman." One thousand laughs are guaranteed by the management of "The Traveling Salesman" James Forbes' latest comedy, which comes to this city on Wednesday night next. Each one of these laughs is the logical sequence of a natural, plausible situation in the life of a jovial drummer on the road. Bob Blake, a jolly, fat drummer, who impudently prejudices his position by coming to the rescue of a young girl who is about to lose her property, is a character that the public loves and admires. His hearty laugh and uniform good nature is bound to create for him a warm circle of friends in this city. The company which Henry B. Harris, the producing manager, will send to this city is the original New York and Chicago aggregation of talent and includes Frank J. McInerney, Gertrude Coghlan, William Beach, Percival T. Moore, H. D. Haskins, Arthur Shaw, Sarah McVicker, and others. Sent side opens tomorrow morning.

SUFFRAGETTES HISS PRESIDENT.

Mr. Taft Explains Opposition Against "Votes For Women."

TAFT IGNORES THE OUTBURST

Incident Noted, However, by Official Stenographer and So Transcribed in White House Report—Talks to National Woman's Suffrage.

Washington, April 15.—President Taft was hissed last night while speaking before the National Woman's Suffrage association at the Arlington hotel.

It was a good sized hiss that started in the back of the auditorium and quickly spread to other parts. It came when Mr. Taft was giving his reason for opposing woman's suffrage. The president gave no evidence of having noticed the discourtesy, but the incident was noted in the official transcript in the speech given out at the White House.

Explaining his opposition to the suffrage movement the president said:
"We approve and support a popular, representative government because on the whole every intelligent class which really is intelligent knows its own interests and is better qualified to determine how those interests shall be cared for and preserved than any other class, no matter how attractive."

"But," continued the president, "I call your attention to two qualifications in that statement. One, that the class should be intelligent enough to know its own interests. The theory that an uneducated class is fitted for self-government at once, or to take part in government, is a theory that I wholly dissent from, but this qualification is not applicable to the question here. The other qualification is that the class should as a whole care enough to look after its interests, to take part as a whole in the exercise of political power. If it is conferred "Now, if it does not care enough for this then it seems to me that the danger is," the power is conferred, that it may be exercised by that part of the class least desirable as political constituents, and be neglected by many of those who are intelligent and patriotic and would be most desirable members of the electorate."

It was at the end of this sentence that the suffragettes began to hiss. In the back part of the hall the sound was very noticeable and the president's stenographer caught it, for in the transcript of the notes appeared these words: "Hisses from several parts of the hall."

Wright-Metzler Co. Clothing FOR MEN.

A Term That Stands for Excellence of Style, Quality and Low Prices.

Not many men underestimate the importance of careful dressing but a large proportion entertain mistaken ideas regarding the cost. Of course good fabrics and trimmings are essential, another important feature is the designing but most important of all the items that enter into our suits is the tailoring—and in this we are most exacting. The most luxurious fabrics are character-istic of our higher priced lines, but suits of lesser cost have the same classy styles and careful tailoring.

This extra tailoring is what counts. It means fit and wear—the suit will stand the test of time which after all is the only true test. It consists of doing well a number of little things, such as shaping and felling of the collars and lapels by hand, fitting and stitching interlinings, shaping the padding, in short the coat is built into shape instead of being made up and pressed into shape. The interlinings are of linen and well shrunk canvas and a haircloth front insures the shape of the coat as long as it lasts.

Men's $25.00 Suits in Exclusive Patterns.

You will pardon our pride when you see the suits—made for the man who picks his clothes with the utmost care, who inspects them closely, who insists on as much style as the custom tailor can embody in a garment and who wants a fit above reproach. Selected, fine woolen fabrics in light colorings and rich dark tones including blues and blacks; a variety of models from the conservative to the ultra-fashionable; and tailoring of the very highest order. The wide assortment makes it easy to select a suit to your liking. See them and compare with your idea of a $35.00 suit.
